

MAKE LIGHT

Lucas Handwerker

Part wizard, part Jedi master Lucas Handwerker is a Mystery Artist, Modern Mystic, Subconscious Guide, and Spiritual Counselor.

He publicly cures fears, clears the darkness, and answers questions: past, present, and future. He weaves awe in believers and non-believers alike. He's been called a brilliant navigator of inner space, a mental prodigy, and a sin eater.

He collaborated with Philippe Petit, immortalized for his high-wire walk between the twin towers in NYC.

At 20 years old, Lucas gave a TEDx talk on 'How to positively change your beliefs.'

Lucas recently hosted a week-long workshop on unconscious healing at the Omega Institute in upstate New York where Elizabeth Lesser, co-founder of Omega, said, “Lucas Handwerker is a shining example of the new breed of transformational teachers.”

Lucas has been working with audiences and private clients for over a decade. He helps people remove inner blocks, dissolve anxiety, resolve trauma, change habits, and make all sorts of inner shifts by working at the unconscious root. When he's not working with clients, he's writing books and presenting his live healing events.

His new show, “Make Light” is a modern mystic healing experience combining conjuring/mentalism, intuitive readings, hypnosis, storytelling, and ritual in an entertaining and enlightening live event.

Demonstrations of intuition, empathic connection, and emotional transformation accent an interactive evening of wondrous healing. The future is seen in the petals of a flower. The grief of the room is consumed in flame and placed in a box for safekeeping. Someone gets what they've always wanted and doesn't want it anymore. The dark symbol that controls our lives comes to life and flies away. The heart of a stranger heals with your gentle attention. A mysterious light is created and fills the room, changing everyone in it.

A woman comes in asking about buying a home and leaves with a profound shift in her family. A man asks how he can heal from losing his son and leaves with a sense of peace and closure. Someone learns to astral project while someone else resolves their sleeping issues. Yet another heals their mysterious nerve pain.

"It was important for me to create this experience in a culturally aligned way. This kind of communal mystical healing experience is essential to human well-being and has been practiced for millennia around the world but is largely missing in our public spaces and current culture. Make Light modernizes the mystical healing experience, bringing an ancient human experience to 21st-century audiences." Handwerker says.

"I realize that all of my interests in magic, mentalism, hypnotherapy, intuitive readings, dreams, and healing connect back to ancient healers and shamans," says Handwerker. "In every village around the world, there was typically a light worker or shaman. I aim to bring this ancient communal experience of wonder and healing to a world in desperate need of connection, light, and magic."

In certain tribal communities, when a woman is pregnant, the village shaman will come to give the unborn child a name. This name would represent the child's future purpose in the village.

Lucas means light in Latin, and Handwerker means maker in German. Light maker. That is what Lucas Handwerker aims to do in these interactive live events.

Make Light.

A group enters the space as strangers, wonder is felt, fears are cured, questions are answered, healing happens, and strangers become a community. You and I become we.

At its core, “Make Light” is about how light can shine on darkness. How the healing of grief, fear, pain, and confusion is possible with the right attention and approach. Ultimately, this healing needs to happen in community and within the experience of wonder. Lucas Handwerker aims to create that community and that experience.

Here's what others are saying:

"I see a lot of performers, and none of them has the power and presence and uniqueness of what Lucas does."

-Philippe Petit, High wire Artist known for his walk between the twin towers and subject of the Oscar-winning film 'Man On Wire.'

“Lucas Handwerker brings a rare combination of depth, delight, and skill to his workshops. He's a shining example of the new breed of transformational teachers.”

-Elizabeth Lesser, Cofounder, Omega Institute

"Lucas was able to pinpoint one of my deepest fears and present it back to me in a way that was digestible and less intimidating. Some of the revelations Lucas gave attendees throughout the night sent them into tears. It's clear Lucas is tapped into something."

-Madame Noir Magazine

"Open your mind to this mental prodigy."

-Chronogram Magazine

"Lucas works to help people overcome their internal obstacles and realize their life's full potential."

-The Boca Raton Tribune

"Lucas Handwerker expands our understanding of truth and helps us go beyond self-imposed limitations."

-Almanac Weekly

"Lucas dazzles and mystifies in a way only felt as a sort of subtle aftershock. A shaman within a showman, he simultaneously heals and inspires, leaving the audience in an afterglow of awe and wonder."

- Amanda GV, previous live event attendee

"Lucas opens a gateway that leaves each person awed and altered for the better. I believe I witnessed real magic that night, and feel more at peace within my soul. I highly recommend buying tickets to this event. It is healing, enchanting, and uplifting. You don't want to miss this."
